Updated Rule for Tier 6 (v0.3 Proposal)

"Quarantined" carries too strong a connotation of total restriction or silencing, which goes against the opt-in, freedom-maximizing spirit we're building.

The goal for tier [6∅] is visibility of weakness, not suppression. It should be highlighted as unreliable (like a warning label) so readers instantly see "this claim has no evidence backing" — but the statement still stands and can be used/discussed.

Old (v0.2): [6∅] No evidence → automatically quarantined (cannot be used as a premise for further claims)

New (v0.3): [6∅] No evidence → automatically flagged with warning (highlighted as unsubstantiated; may not be relied on as a premise without upgrade, but remains visible and discussable)

Visual/Practical Change

- In text: [6 ⚠️] or [6∅] in red/bold with "Warning: Unsubstantiated" note.

- In verifier bot: Yellow/Red highlight + "This claim lacks evidence — treat with caution".

- Still blocks it from being a foundation for stronger claims (prevents chain-building on sand), but doesn't hide or delete it.

Hexon-θ v0.3 Example Update Mandatory pronouns [6 ⚠️] (no evidence of necessity) ↔ ↓ trust via resentment — Warning: Unsubstantiated base claim #HexonTheta-v0.3

This keeps the penalty (can't build on it reliably) but removes the "lock away" feel.

Better alignment: Flag, don't gag.
